לענן פעסל בת ישראל מנחם / לזכות חילינו

One of the 613 mitzvos is the prohibition against destroying even one stone from the Holy Temple, how then could Hashem have destroyed the entire Temple, and not just once, but twice?

But the answer is that the prohibition is against destroying for the sake of causing damage, not demolition for the sake of rebuilding. And since we know that the Third Temple will be greater in every way than the first two Temples, we can therefore reframe the entire Churban (Destruction) as part of a larger process of rebuilding.

And so it is with all of the pain and suffering that we have endured over the 2,000 years of exile. We have to know that it is not wanton destruction, G-d forbid, but a process that can - and actually by definition - must lead to something greater than we have lost.

May we witness the rebuilding of the Holy Temple and our entire world immediately with Moshiach now.

RABBI SHAIS TAUB

The day of Tisha B'Av will yet become for the House of Yehudah a day of rejoicing and happiness - a day of gladness.

ZECHARIA HANAVI

We are a nation of hope, of vision, of unwavering optimism and defiant positivity...
People think everything is over. The Jewish nation's task is to remind humanity that we are just getting started.

RABBI YAAKOV KLEIN

Be kinder than necessary, for everyone you meet is fighting some kind of battle.

LIGHTS OF KABBALAH

Hashem created stars to remind us that even dark times show specks of light if we look close enough.
