

Necessary Information

13. One may ask a member of the opposite gender about their personal circumstances, skills, etc., to the degree necessary for a specific reason. For instance, one may ask relevant questions during a job interview in order to determine whether the applicant is the right person for the job. In this case, it is apparent that the questions are being asked for a specific reason other than to forge a personal relationship.

(See Malbushei Mordechai 5:24-25)