לע"נ פעסל בת ישראל מנחם / לזכות חילינו

Trusting Hashem means taking the next step even when you don't see the entire staircase.

RABBI DANIEL AGALAR

*The very first step in serving Hashem is knowing how valuable and cherished you truly are.
Recognize your greatness and importance in the eyes of the Creator.*

RABBEINU YONAH (1180-1263)

To trust in Hashem means to know that He has already prepared the solution before we even see the problem.

STORIES TO INSPIRE

The Jewish people are a symphony of many instruments, each with its own distinct sound; yet when played together, they create a magnificent harmony.

ATTRIBUTED TO RABBI SHAMSHON RAPHAEL HIRSCH (1808-1888)

*On January 1st, 2000 the New York Times ran a millennium edition. It featured three cover pages.
One had the news from January 1, 1900; the second one was the actual news of the day; and the third one projected future events of the year 2100, like welcoming Cuba as a new state, robots demanding equality and voting rights.*

*But there was one more thing. There was an ad. Nobody paid for it. It was a fictional ad.
It was put in there by the New York Times. So what was it? It was Candle Lighting for Shabbat January 1, 2100.*

*When asked about it, the publisher (an Irish-Catholic) commented,
"We don't know what will happen in the year 2100. It is impossible to predict the future.
But of one thing you can be certain. That in the year 2100, Jewish women will be lighting Shabbat candles."*

Am Yisrael Chai
