Greeting a Group of Men or Women

28. If a man works in an office with several female employees and it is necessary for him to greet them, it is advisable that he greet all of them together rather than greet each one individually, as this is a less personal interaction.

29. The same applies regarding one woman greeting many men. If one female employee works in an office together with numerous male employees and she needs to greet them, if possible, she should greet them all together when she walks in rather than greet each man individually.
