

Male and Female Coworkers

- 21. A man and woman should not be stationed in the same room if no other workers are sitting in that room. This applies even in a place where there is no prohibition of yichud.

When seeking a job, one should avoid taking a position where he/she will have to sit in the same office with a member of the opposite gender as the only two people in the room (even if there are other workers in the building, but none in the same room). (Shu"t

Meishiv Nevonim 6:62; Yisrael Kedoshim p. 254)

- 22. Similarly, a man and woman should not work together in an office in which they are the only two workers – even in separate rooms.

When someone starts a new business and wants to hire just one worker of the opposite gender, or if someone is offered a job working as the only employee of a boss of the opposite gender, a Rav should be consulted before finalizing the hiring.
